

ABOUT THE PUBLICATION

Marital Litigation in South Carolina—Substantive Law, Fourth Edition

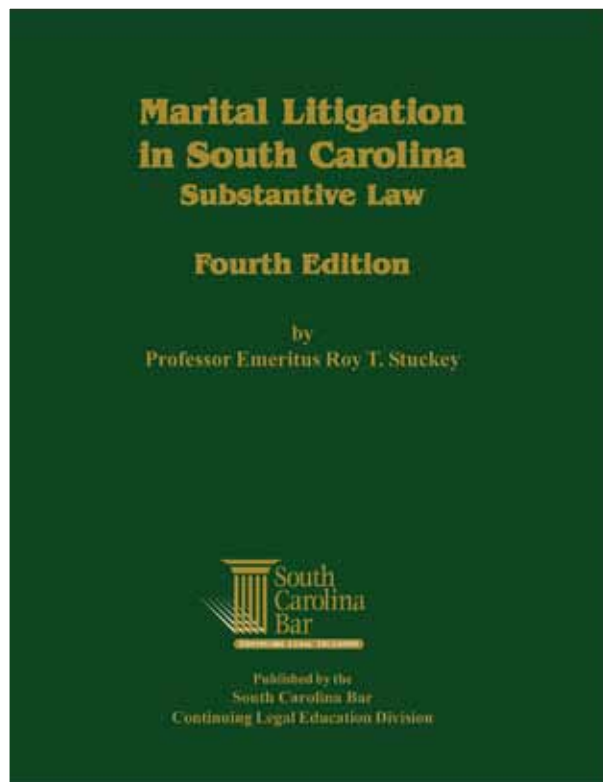

by Professor Emeritus Roy T. Stuckey

This exceptional treatise, the "bible" for South Carolina domestic relations practitioners and judges, provides comprehensive analysis of every major aspect of family law of this state. With over 100 new cases added and updates through August 2010 the new Fourth Edition is a resource every family law attorney should own.

New for the Fourth Edition several chapters were significantly reorganized and new sections added. Revisions to the UCCJEA and UIFSA were incorporated and the Military Parent Equal Protection Act is discussed. The statutory citations, including those in older cases, were updated to reflect the recodification of large portions of Title 20 into Title 63.

An outstanding resource, the book is arranged in well-organized, clearly delineated chapters and sections. The narrative style is clean and straightforward, with a very practical point of view. It includes background and "historical perspective" on the statutory and case law development and the nuances involved in the issues, but the primary focus is on the current law. Professor Stuckey offers valuable analysis regarding several important areas of marital law where there is no clear precedent or authority, or where practices might be inconsistent from one part of the state to another.
