

Faculty Learning Community - 2014

Teaching is intellectual work fundamental to the University's educational mission and requires continual adaptation, innovation and improvement. The Faculty Learning Community is a group of faculty members engaged in regular meetings to increase their knowledge about teaching, to increase their motivation to pursue innovation, and to become more scholarly in their approach to teaching. Within this Faculty Learning Community context, faculty will concentrate on information, communication and technology literacy concepts (ICT) and how to teach them and incorporate them into their coursework.
