Re: Book Review

Dear :

I am writing to tell you about the book I recently read, Sticky. Sticky is the story of Gretchen who lives in the small town of Ilhisun. Gretchen has never left Ilhisun and spends her days working in the local tape factory. She spends her evenings watching Church TV and making macramé plant hangers. Yes, Gretchen's life is quite mundane and consequently, so is the novel. This is the author's first novel and unless the author finds another literary niche, it may be her last novel. Sticky was a repetitive diary of Gretchen's life and Gretchen's life never changed. Though the first chapter was interesting for the fact that if you are depressed, you feel much better knowing that there is someone with a more boring life. However, after the third chapter, you left wondering what is the point, and you are ready to strangle Gretchen with one of her macramé knots. I do not suggest this book to anyone.

Sincerely,

N A M E
