Reflections of Pope Francis.

By Elise Harris

Vatican City, Apr 27, 2016 / 05:17 am (CNA/EWTN News).- On Wednesday Pope Francis said that just because someone is an expert in God's law and a strict adherent to the rules doesn't necessarily mean they know how to love and serve others.

"It's not automatic that whoever frequents the House of God and knows his mercy knows how to love their neighbor. It's not automatic," the Pope said April 27.

"You can know the bible, you can know all the liturgical norms, you can know theology, but 'to know' is not automatically 'to love,'" he said, explaining that "to love has another path, with intelligence, but it has something more."

While knowledge and worship are good, they are false unless they are "translated into service of others," Francis stressed.

"Let us never forget: in front of the suffering of so many people exhausted by hunger, violence, injustice, we cannot remain spectators. To ignore the suffering of man means to ignore God!"

Pope Francis spoke to pilgrims gathered in St. Peter's Square for his Wednesday general audience, which he has dedicated to the topic of mercy as seen in scripture for the Jubilee of mercy.

In his speech, the Pope focused on the Gospel passage in Luke in which Jesus recounts the parable of the Good Samaritan.

After telling the crowd that they must "love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength and will all your mind, and to love your neighbor as yourself," Jesus is questioned by a doctor of the law, who presses him on who qualifies as a neighbor.

What this doctor of the law is looking for, Francis said, is "a clear rule that permits him to classify the others into 'neighbor' and 'non-neighbors.' Those who can become neighbors and those who cannot become neighbors."

Jesus then responds with a parable including a priest, a Levite and a Samaritan. The first two are linked to their worship at the temple, while the third, the Samaritan, is "a schismatic Jew, considered as a stranger, a pagan and impure."

Francis noted that the Law of the Lord obliged the priest and the Levite to help the suffering, injured man, yet they both pass without stopping. The despised Samaritan, on the other hand, doesn't walk by the wounded man like the other two, but instead had compassion.

"That is the difference," Pope Francis said. "The other two saw, but their hearts remained closed, cold. Instead the heart of the Samaritan was in tune with the heart of God."

This event is for all of the Catholic parents on Oahu looking to find support from or even provide support to other couples. Maybe you're new parents... maybe you're grandparents... maybe you've just taken guardianship of a new child... or maybe you're without children. Maybe you've discovered the key to communicating with your spouse or maybe you feel like you'll never be on the same page. Regardless of where you're at, as Catholics we all want to go to the same place!

Dear Parishioners,

Help us to spread the following message:

When parking in the Outreach parking lot there should be one way in from Kalaheo Avenue to Makawao Street and one way out. Please DO NOT park near the neighbor's property line/fence. We need to keep this area open for the safe flow of cars in and out. See the model below.

Living Catholic in the 808: Why Not Now?

By: Kristina M. DeNeve

Adult Faith Formation Coordinator, Diocese of Honolulu

When we get to the point that we know, when we have experienced or just glimpsed how close God is to us, well, that knowledge can provide us with unshakable ground.

It is ground that supports us through all the key transitions of our lives—our vocational choices, our friends, our values, where we live, our commitment to that special person who commits to us, and to whom we commit with all we have.

All of these involve faith. And the truth is that when we go through these transitions in faith, all these choices and experiences become so much richer.

And this is not even counting our children – those precious gifts – children whom we hope even more than ourselves that they will know life's deepest experiences of love, of being loved and loving others. Yes, we might want them to earn lots of money or be educated. But, what we really want most for our children, for all children is a life-sustaining, deep abiding happiness and peace.

With all this buried inside of us, I have a question for you: why not connect more fully with your Catholic faith? Why not become more active once again?

Respect Life Ministry

Pope Francis, in his Apostolic Exhortation "The Joy of Love," writes, "The Psalmist says: 'You knit me together in my mother's womb' (Ps 139:13). Every child growing within the mother's womb is part of the eternal loving plan of God the Father: 'Before I formed you in the womb I knew you, and before you were born I consecrated you' (Jer 1:5). Each child has a place in God's heart from all eternity; once he or she is conceived, the Creator's eternal dream comes true. Let us pause to think of the great value of that embryo from the moment of conception. We need to see it with the eyes of God, who always looks beyond mere appearances." (AL, 168)
