

Sample Letter To Treatment Providers of Independent Patients Suffering from Anosognosia:

Parents Names:

Parents of _____

Date of Birth & Age

We are submitting the enclosed information for you to review and take into consideration when making treatment plans/recommendations for our daughter/son _____. We are aware that due to HIPPA laws you are unable to release any treatment information to us unless our child signs a release of information. However, due to the extensive history of treatment and seriousness of his/her illness it is imperative for you to be familiar with treatment history and providers. We strongly recommend that you have our child sign releases of information for you to attain prior treatment records and/or collaborate with current/past treatment providers (whom are listed below).

Another reason why we are supplying lengthy information is that one of the defining characteristics of an eating disorder is denial, which impedes the sufferer from accurately assessing and reporting their symptoms and impairments. We love our daughter /son immensely and don't want to see her/him encounter any further health impairments so please take the following information into consideration.

Anosognosia/anosognosic: Pertaining to an illness or disability in which the sufferer seems to be unaware of, or denies, the disability. Patients with anorexia nervosa are often "anosognosic" as they truly do not feel ill and they experience their own behaviors and thoughts as normal. This is not a choice or conscious denial, but rather a feature of brain dysfunction.
