Research paper submission form

The Sixth Summit on Communication and Sport
Friday, February 22 – Sunday, February 24, 2013 in Austin, TX

Thank you for submitting your scholarly research to the Sixth Summit on Communication and Sport, a conference sponsored by the International Association of Communication and Sport and hosted by the Texas Program in Sports and Media and the College of Communication at The University of Texas at Austin.

Paper topics are welcome on any subject of theoretical or methodological relevance to the general area of communication and sport. Programming space at the conference is limited and extremely competitive. The Summit's conference planning committee will make the final determination on conference content and scheduling. The Summit welcomes submissions of full-length manuscripts or extended abstracts. The Summit's conference planning review committee will give preference to scheduling research presentations to scholars who submit full-length manuscripts.

Full-length manuscript must be 5,000-7,500 words and conform to APA style. Extended abstract should be 500-1,000 words. No information identifying the author and his or her university affiliation may appear in the submitted manuscript or abstract. Any submissions that fail to conform to this requirement will not be considered.

Up to two submissions from the same individual noted as lead author will be considered. Submissions that explore theoretical and/or critical issues related to the study of communication and sport are invited and all methodologies are welcome.

To submit your research paper, please fill out the information below. Email this sheet with a PDF version of the manuscript or extended abstract to christopher.hart@austin.utexas.edu. All research paper submissions must have an email date stamp no later than 11:59 pm October 26 (US central standard time).
