Tips and Other Helpful Information

- This is a cooperative trip; open to all University students. Participants share group costs, planning, and logistics.
- Participants are responsible for their own safety and level of participation.
- The cost of the trip is $200 which includes most meals, housing, and transportation. Any spending money is the responsibility of the student.
- Participants should be prepared to get their hands dirty, work hard, and have fun. We will be staying in housing provided by Habitat for Humanity. Members will share cleaning, cooking, and other daily responsibilities, as well as participate in trip planning.
- There will be scheduled reflection time throughout the trip and participants will be asked to lead at least one of these sessions.
