Description of video, photograph, or audio recording: Documentary for the "Day in the Life Series" developed and assigned by Curtis Johnston for educational and humanitarian use in the Mercer Island School District. As part of his AP Literature and Composition course, Mr. Johnston has created an initiative that compels his students and the lives they touch to seek and display compassion, empathy, and admiration for all people. Students work in small groups to find people who should be appreciated for exactly who they are – students create their own criteria for selection, ultimately choosing a person that will make the viewer feel a range of human emotions, culminating in admiration and appreciation. This video will not be used commercially or for any purpose other than described here.
