BUDGET YOUR MONEY

The primary purpose of a budget is to create a realistic plan for spending limited financial resources. The budget highlights the spending patterns you're not aware of and helps you better plan for future spending.

A student budget is specifically designed to identify the costs of your educational expenses, help you plan ahead for a shortfall, and pinpoint ways to save more money to cover your expenses.

Following are some tips to help you set up your student budget:

- To use the Budget Calculator on the right, click on the desired box to enter your data. The calculator will adjust the budget computation as you enter your data.
- If expenses exceed income, review and identify the fixed and the flexible expenses from your completed budget based on definitions and examples provided below:

Fixed expenses are exact amounts due on a specific date, such as room & board, meal plans, and tuition. Flexible expenses include money spent on wants and needs that are irregular in nature, such as books, restaurant meals, phone bills, transportation, social and recreation expenses.
- Your objective will be to adjust your flexible expenses and/or increase your income/other financial resources, until you reach a more realistic and balanced budget that you can easily follow.
- Once you have reached the desired budget, print and keep a copy for your records.

BORROW WISELY

Before you borrow:

Deciding on how to finance your college education takes planning, and it's important for you to understand your financial aid options. Before you apply for a student loan, we strongly recommend researching scholarships and grants to take full advantage of gift aid. If you find that you need a loan, borrow only what you need to cover your college-related expenses.

Remember, a loan is a legally binding contract. You are obligated to repay it with interest even if you are dissatisfied with your school or the education you received.
