What I can offer as a mentor:	I completed a Foundation course at Queens Campus before starting my degree which helped me to get back into studying after a long time from it. Before starting my studies at Durham University, I worked as a manager in Parks and Countryside for Middlesbrough Council for sixteen years. During this time I managed a team of around thirty people and was responsible for assisting with training and personal development. I have worked with people from a wide range of backgrounds and consider myself to be a good listener and communicator. I think my strengths include time management and problem solving.
