

National Association for Interpretation ~ Region 9 Spring Workshop

Rising Tides: Riding the Waves of Change

CALL FOR PAPERS

April 5-7, 2013

Deadline: Monday, February 11, 2013

An evolving world demands innovation in how we interpret these changes now and into the future. As society responds to rising tides against the shoreline, we must elevate our skills and techniques to meet changing demographics, technology, and environmental concerns to ensure future generations are inspired to protect their inherited natural and cultural resources.

The 2013 NAI Region 9 spring workshop will feature in-depth discussions and training on revolutionary interpretive techniques as well as how to navigate the challenges of maintaining relevancy in a shifting society. We invite front-line interpreters, managers, planners, and trainers from throughout Region 9 to share their methods and priorities for riding the waves of change in the social and environmental climate of today... and tomorrow.
