Wealth Creation and HR Challenges in the Mineral Exploration Industry

Guest Speakers:

Paul Henning (VP, Strategic Projects, Western Canada, Rio Tinto Alcan)

Don Wright (President, BC Institute of Technology)

Don Wright

The challenge of training, recruiting and retaining human resources is one of the key strategic issues facing B.C.'s rapidly growing mineral exploration & development sector. There are over 10,000 highly skilled and well paid job openings anticipated in the B.C. mineral exploration and mining industry from now until 2020 and nearly 5,000 retirements are expected over the next decade. Join Don Wright, President, BCIT for the third instalment of the 2011/2012 AME BC Speaker Series where we will learn about the current skilled labour shortage dilemma and how it could be addressed in the future.

Don Wright has been the President of the British Columbia Institute of Technology since March 2008. BCIT is one of B.C.'s largest post secondary educational institutions, with enrolments of 16,000 full time students and 32,000 part time students. Don's career has spanned the academic, government and private sectors. He has taught economics at Harvard University and the University of Saskatchewan.

Paul Henning

Mr. Paul Henning, Vice President, Strategic Projects, Western Canada for Rio Tinto Alcan, will speak about Rio Tinto Alcan's implementation of its $3.3 billion smelter modernization in Kitimat - a major project representative of the labour shortage challenges companies are facing now and into the future.
