Fall 2007

Dear Alumni Friends and Supporters,

It is my great pleasure to extend greetings to you as we begin a new spirit of collaborative relations with our alumni.

As the new Vice President of Institutional Advancement and University Relations, I am both excited and energized by the dedication and interest of the alumni whom I have had the opportunity to meet. I am also greatly encouraged that so many of you have already pledged your time, involvement and continued support of CAU. This level of commitment is destined to make a difference in helping us to meet the goals we have set and the vision we have for the University.

This demonstration of interest and support has also spurred my enthusiasm and optimism about the great work we can do together during this new period of re-engaging our alumni. More importantly, I look forward to leading the University's heightened priority on strengthening alumni relations as our collaboration and mutual cooperation promise to infuse vigor and vitality into every facet of Clark Atlanta University.

As an example of our commitment to cooperation and to building bridges with alumni, we are pleased to announce the Albert H. Watts Alumni House in Atlanta is once again open to alumni for their use and convenience. We look forward to hosting and attending more activities there in the coming year.

There are indeed great and exciting times ahead for us in the current academic year and beyond. From our placement on The Princeton Review's list of "Best Southeastern Colleges" for 2008, to the building and renovations taking place on campus, to our increased focus on alumni engagement, we are committed to giving you a reason to rally around CAU and give or continue to give your support.

To that end, I am excited to have become a new life member of the CAU Alumni Association.

Once again, I look forward to your joining us as we work together to make CAU a stronger and more vibrant higher education institution. Together, we can do it. Welcome home! Go, Panthers!

Sincerely,

Aristide J. Collins, Jr.

Message from the CAUAA President

Dear Alumni,

I bring you greetings on behalf of the Clark Atlanta University Alumni Association.

We were delighted that so many alumni chose to come back home to their alma mater on October 5th and 6th. This year's Homecoming theme was simply "Coming Home." Our activities included a very successful Open House at the Watts Alumni House and Tailgate Village. The CAU Athletics Booster

Message from the CAUAA President

The Fall Conference was held in the “Windy City” of Chicago. Under the guidance and leadership of our President Emerita, Mrs. Maurice Fitts Page, the Chicagoland Chapter has tirelessly worked to make this one of our best conferences. We adjusted our schedule to meet the demanding needs of our career alums and convened on Friday, November 9th.

This year’s theme was “CAU Alumni: Passing the Torch and Embracing the Future.” Conference highlights included the Maxey Marshall Corporate Breakfast, Alumni Luncheon, and a tour of Chicago featuring African-American points of interest. Dr. Carlton Brown, our new Executive Vice President and Provost, and Mr. Aristide J. Collins, Jr., our new Vice President for Institutional Advancement & University Relations, addressed conference attendees.

On August 19th the Alumni Association hosted a Welcome Reception for Dr. Brown and Mr. Collins. This well-attended event gave alums an opportunity to hear first-hand their respective goals and visions for CAU. They were introduced by Mrs. Juanita Baranco, chair of the CAU Board of Trustees. President and Mrs. Walter D. Broadnax were in attendance as well as members of the President’s cabinet, CAU faculty and staff. One could certainly attest to the energy and enthusiasm present among those at the reception.

Best wishes,

Brenda J. Tolliver (CC ‘72, AU ‘73)
President, CAUAA

Restricted gifts are directed to a specific area designated by the donor. Your annual gifts continue to improve the University and provide a lasting impact on the lives of its students. As a premier institution of higher learning, financial assistance for students stands at the heart of CAU’s heritage.

The goal for the CAU Annual Fund, this year, is $1 million which will significantly impact the future direction of Clark Atlanta University.

CAU’s future is bright, and we need your continued support to keep the momentum going. Your generous gift today will enhance the University’s ability to educate tomorrow’s leaders in the sciences, the arts, industry, and the caring professions.

We are grateful for your support of the CAU Annual Fund. Your gift, no matter the size, is important and greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

CAUAA Chapter News

Lucy Parks Hamilton (CU '32), who rarely misses a chapter meeting, celebrated her 97th birthday November 28, 2006.

Taj Tashombe (CAU '02) is successfully devoting his time to recruiting recent grads for the Los Angeles Chapter. He has created a MySpace site, which has proven to be an excellent recruitment vehicle for the chapter.

We were ecstatic at the first meeting of the New Year to welcome Mahogany Ratcliffe (CAU '02), Tiffany Smith (CAU '03), Christopher Williams (CAU '05) and Dena Waldon (CAU '98). Waldon has driven approximately 240 miles round-trip from San Diego to participate in alumni activities. We also extended a warm welcome to James Scriven (AU '67), who joined us at the first meeting of the New Year. Gabrielle Reynolds (CAU '04) attended our February meeting.

Several of our newly recruited members and Tashombe were overwhelmed with the number of potential students interested in CAU at the Black College Expo held on January 13, 2007, at the Los Angeles Convention Center. In fact, they did not have enough recruitment materials to meet the demand. Kristin LeDuff (CAU '03) recruited students at the annual Black College Fair held at Long Beach City College on February 28, 2007. The chapter has three college fairs scheduled for the next two months.

Mahogany Ratcliffe's starring role in the NAACP's best play of 2006, The Girls of Summer, helped to raise funds for the local chapter by attracting fellow alumni to the theatre. It is noteworthy that support of the event was successful in generating funds for the local chapter.

Kimoji Brown (CAU '95) is editor of an online magazine, The Weekend Gamer, www.theweekendgamer.com, and his lovely wife Kasey Philips Brown (CAU '94 and '96) is featured as an interviewer of some rather outstanding celebrities.

Carolyn McIntosh (CC '64) was also recently recognized by the California Legislative Assembly as Citizen of the Year 2006 for her volunteer/community service.

People in the News

Allison Samuels (CAU '88) shared a 2007 National Association of Black Journalists Award for Newsweek's March 17, 2007 cover package "Black Like Who?" which she coauthored with John Leland, Ellis Cose and Vern Smith. Their stories explored the generation gap which exists between many African Americans of the civil rights era and their offspring, who relate more closely with today's hip-hop culture than with their elders' struggles. She joined Newsweek in March 1994 as a researcher, and was promoted to reporter in January 1996. Before joining the magazine, Samuels had worked as a researcher at Quincy Jones Entertainment since 1992 and as a reporter at The Los Angeles Times since 1989. Samuels graduated from Clark Atlanta University in 1988 with a Bachelor's degree in Mass Communications. Samuels, who is not affiliated with the Los Angeles alumni chapter, currently resides in Los Angeles. She recently published a book titled Off the Record.

The Music of Her Heart

Nichell Taylor Bryant (CAU '91)

"I had put music out of my life for nearly a decade to establish a more 'stable' life, so I became a journalist for a long time then a publicist. But music was always very much in my heart, calling me."

That musical calling eventually led Nichell Taylor Bryant to the stage of the world-renowned Carnegie Hall in New York in June 2007, where she performed a 90-minute classical soprano recital debut. In 1987, she proudly chose Clark Atlanta University for her college studies and graduated cum laude with a Bachelor's degree in Mass Media Arts/Journalism. Her career in media began in 1989 in Atlanta, where she was a freelance writer covering various news and feature stories for the city's historic community newspapers, including The Atlanta Voice, The Atlanta Daily World, The Atlanta Inquirer and the Atlanta University Center Digest. In 1990, Bryant joined the editorial staff of The Atlanta Journal-Constitution (AJC), where she worked as a reporter for seven years. Today, she is the founder of SoulSource Communications, LLC (www.business.pr.com/soulsourcecommunications), a New York-based public relations and editorial firm.

In 1997, she decided to take a leap of faith and began studying privately with a few renowned New York vocal coaches. "I had put music out of my life for nearly a decade to establish a more 'stable' life, so I became a journalist for a long time then a publicist. But music was always very much in my heart, calling me. One day I decided to answer the call, for better or for worse. . . My Carnegie Hall classical soprano recital debut was amazing and exceeded my dreams and expectations." Performing on stage at New York's prestigious Carnegie Hall certainly qualifies as "working out pretty well."

PANTHERS AND JOHNSON ARE NATION'S BEST

In February, the Clark Atlanta University (CAU) Panthers football team and defensive lineman Curtis Johnson were recognized as 2006 Division II Statistical Champions by the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA).

The Panthers were the best defensive team in college football (Division II) in total defense this past season. In 10 games, the Panthers yielded only 2,234 in total yards or 223.4 yards per game. The CAU defense gave up only 15 touchdowns and finished first in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SIAC) in pass defense with teams averaging a mere 120 yards per game. The Panther defense also finished second in the SIAC in scoring by holding opponents to an average of 15.6 points per game.

Instrumental in the team's statistical championship were the efforts of junior defensive lineman Curtis Johnson. Over the course of the season, Johnson forced nine fumbles, the most in college football (Division II). For his effort, he was named the NCAA Division II Statistical Champ for Forced Fumbles.

"A player of Curtis' talent and work-ethic comes along all too rarely in Division II college football," said Head Coach Ted Bahhur. "I am not surprised that he led the nation in forced fumbles. We've known all along that his on-field ability combined with his leadership qualities would make us a better football team. While the rest of the nation is just being introduced to Curtis as an NCAA Statistical Champion, I fully expect that after his graduation from CAU, he'll become a household name as a member of the National Football League."

At 6'3, 240 lbs, Johnson was a linchpin for the Panther defense. In addition to leading the nation in forced fumbles, he led the Panthers in tackles for loss with 18 and was first on the team in fumble returns with three, two of which were returned for touchdowns. The Lauderhill, Florida native was the Panthers' second leading tackler with 70, and he was second on the team in quarterback sacks with five.

"You can go back in CAU history as far as the famed 'Black Battalion of Death' of the 1920s to see that strong defense has always been one of the hallmarks of Panther football," said Bahhur. "As a coaching staff, we pride ourselves on that tradition and the players also know the importance of defense to our overall success. Defensive Coordinator Kelvin Powell did a tremendous job implementing our defensive schemes this past season and the results are pretty conclusive. Panther fans and CAU Alumni across the country can rejoice in our status as NCAA Statistical Champions."
