“I Remember You” written by Bernard Slade in 1994 is the story of Buddy, a lounge singer who has seen better days, and is haunted by a short, passionate affair he enjoyed with an English woman 25 years ago. Set in a smoky Manhattan cabaret, amidst the plinking piano keys, and whiskey-smooth standards, the charming piano player, Buddy lands in a love triangle.

Bernard Slade also wrote “Same Time Next Year” in 1975. He is also known for his development of iconic TV shows such as “The Flying Nun”, “The Partridge Family”, and “Bridget Loves Bernie”.

This show opens Friday, April 25 and runs through May 10.
