

KUSD Talent Release Form

Teachers should have their students complete a talent release form for a service-learning project if:

- Students will donate their original work to a non-profit agency (e.g. donating artwork to be hung at a homeless shelter, writing a book to donate to sick children at the Ronald McDonald Center, etc.)
- If students or their work will be featured in a photograph, video, television production, website, or other similar means

Please keep in mind the student safeguards outlined in Board Policy #1213:

- a. No personal information about a student may be included on Web pages published on the District Web site. This includes home telephone numbers and addresses as well as information regarding the specific location of any student at any given time, other than attendance at a particular school or participation in activities. This includes full names of other family members, or full names of friends.
- b. Student work may be signed with the student's first name and initial of their last name or just their initials. No pictures may identify students by name unless permission is given in writing by a parent/guardian.
- c. Individuals in pictures, movies or sound recordings that are put on the Internet may not be identified. No last names may appear in reference to individuals in any written work, image, movie or sound recording placed on the Web.
- d. Published e-mail addresses are restricted to staff members or to a generic classroom e-mail address where arriving e-mail is forwarded to students by a staff member.
