Waggin' Tales

A NOTE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Holiday Greetings to you!

Another December has come and with it always time for reflection It seems like yesterday that Ellie was a puppy and I started on my dog training/showing journey – and it has been almost five years! Amazing what one ball of fluff can do to change your life. But then you all have dogs and you certainly know that concept.

One of the things I know I said many times five years ago (and am so eating these words) “I like to train but I’m not into showing.” Dog showing (of any kind) was a very foreign and scary proposition. I knew nothing; in fact at my first show I had my arm band on the wrong arm and that first Rally Novice class – a debacle and thankfully not filmed. However, this is where the Club can make a difference. It was club members who kept me going, who taught me the ropes and who laughed with me, teased me and helped celebrate when it finally all came together. I tell you this story because if you have ANY thought of going into that ring, there are folks to help you. Reach out and ask. People who show dogs love to see someone join the fun.

There is one rule however of the dog training/show world that is of vital importance and frankly one that I think is tough for new folks to fully comprehend, doggie personal space. Making sure your dog doesn’t put their nose where it doesn’t belong has to be one of the hardest things to do. Your attention strays for a split second and they take advantage and try to greet their neighbor. A neighbor who may or may not want that attention! I beg you to always be on the lookout – most especially in the aisles and in the parking lot. We had someone get bit last week in the parking lot because dogs were allowed to get too close. No one wants bad things to happen but the only way to avoid this is to give each dog their space. Please take heed as we want no one else to be harmed.

In closing I want to reflect on this past year for the Club. We have had a record number of new members, we have added several new classes, went from a one day to a two day obedience trial, added several new therapy dogs to the community and so much more. We are a strong vital club and should be very proud. I am impressed at every event and at every training night. Thank you all, Happy Holidays and Happy New Year!

See you at training,

Donna Bihner

President FVDTC

YOUR DOG'S WAGGIN' TALE:

Used by permission, Dr. Karen Becker (Mercola Healthy Pets)

Your dog's wagging tail may very well be one of your most favorite things, but it serves a purpose far beyond bringing you joy. Animal tails are, in fact, incredibly useful for many reasons. After you read through 10 of their most amazing uses below, you might even wish you had one yourself!

1. For Attack

Many animals use their tails for self-defense, but for the scorpion the tail is also used as a weapon for attack. In addition to defense, when a scorpion catches prey in its front pincers, it then uses its tail to deliver a deadly dose of poison to its victim.

2. Grasping/Holding

What's the difference between a monkey and an ape? Monkeys have tails, apes don't. Some monkeys have what are called prehensile tails, which function as an extra limb allowing the monkey to hold and grasp objects. Monkeys' prehensile tails are used to swing from branches and hold onto food. (Anteaters and opossums also have prehensile tails.)

3. Flight

A bird's tail is made up of feathers called rectrices. These are used for stability and control, as birds use their tails as rudders to help them steer.

4. Courtship

Peacocks use their tails to help attract a mate. Interestingly, each peacock's tail is unique, like a fingerprint.

5. To Swat Pests

Animals that have long tails with tufts of hair on the end or throughout (like cows, horses, and zebras) use their tails to swat away flies and other insect pests.

6. Marking Territory

Many animals spread feces to mark their territory, but the hippopotamus can twirl its tail like a propeller while it poops, which allows its feces to be spread far and wide.

7. Defense

Tails help animals escape predators in a number of amazing ways. Rattlesnakes use their tails to sound an audible warning, while certain lizards have tails that detach from their bodies so they can escape even after they're caught. Three-banded armadillos can even fit their head and tail together like a puzzle, rolling into an armored ball.

8. Locomotion

Fish and marine mammals use their tails to move through the water. Fish tails move side to side while marine mammals' tails move up and down, which allows them to propel themselves out of the water when they need to breathe air.

9. Balance

Many animals use their tails to help them balance. Your cat is one of them, as are squirrels – both examples of animals that have an amazing ability to navigate perilous terrain.

10. Communication

Animals also use their tails to communicate, and this includes your dog and cat. Cats' tails, for instance, can display many emotions, such as fear, excitement, and irritation. Your dog's tail wags can indicate happiness or friendliness, and they also help your dog communicate with other dogs.

Recent research suggests that when dogs feel stress, they tend to wag their tails to the left as a reflection of what's happening in the brain. Activation of the left-brain causes the tail to wag to the right; activation of the right brain produces a wag to the left.

The research shows that dogs wag to the right side when they encounter something pleasant. When they see something threatening, for example, a strange dog exhibiting dominant behaviors, they wag more to the left side.

These results suggest that dogs notice another dog's tail wagging and use the information to decide whether the dog with the wagging tail is friend or foe. What do other tail positions mean (among dogs, at least)?

- A tail held high is a sign of dominance. The dog will release more of their scent from their anal glands this way, thus making their presence known
- A tail held high and wagging is often a sign of happiness
- A tail held horizontal to the ground means your dog is exploring
- A low-wagging tail is a sign of worry or insecurity
- A tail tucked between the legs is a sign of fear or submission (this position also prevents his scent from being released)

And Two Bonus Tail Uses...

Some animals, such as foxes, use their tails to keep warm during the winter. Others, like alligators, use them to store fat.

BOARD MEETING HIGHLIGHTS - DECEMBER 10, 2014

Meeting brought to order at 7:45 p.m.

Carolyn Pearson (Secretary). The July Meeting minutes were approved as published.

Dana Weller (Treasurer) distributed the financial report as of December 10th. This report did not include the majority of the expenses or income from the November Obedience/Rally trials.

Will Short (Director of Training) announced that Penny Brich is the Primary Instructor and Tim White is the Assistant Instructor for the new Advanced Puppy class, which starts on January 8th, 2015. Will reported that, at his request, puppies were brought for the first night with the 8:00 p.m. Puppy class which began on December 4th. He stated that there did not appear to be any problems caused by this experiment. This is a departure from our standard policy of not bringing the dogs to the first night of the class session.

Sue MacPherson (Membership Chairperson) stated that she and Nancy Pederson were working with an individual to clarify the relationship between taking a class and the membership process.

Dave Lewis (Director at Large) reported that people who search for FVDTC on the web are finding our site by using variations on "Fox Valley Dog Training", "FVDTC", "St. Charles Dog Training", etc. However, people who use more generic terms like "Dog Training" are getting to our web site. He wants to improve the Search Engine Options (SEO) for the site to make us more search-engine friendly.

Old Business

- WOOF-Line Replacement
Due to the changes made to the equipment hosting the WOOF-Line, the number is no longer in service. Donna has found a replacement and Dave will register the club and set it up.
- Work Credit Review
Ed Herdes asked that the list of work credits offered be reviewed. After much discussion of the entire list, Ed made the following motion.

- Club members who participate in the entire day of mat cleaning will earn 2 work credits, effective January 1, 2014.
- Club members who volunteer at the Information Table/Front Desk will earn 1 work credit per two nights effective January 1, 2015.
- Will Short seconded the motion. The motion was approved by all members present, with no one opposed or abstaining.
- Volunteer Awards
Donna stated that Cheryl Hettlinger has asked the club to consider offering the volunteer award as a tiered award as a way of acknowledging non-titling club members who earn more than 10 work credits. It was suggested that we offer items in the "Level 1" list for earning 10 work credits and then offering items in the "Level 2" list for earning 15 (or 20) work credits. However, Donna stated that the items currently offered for the volunteers (earning 10 work credits) are already in the "Level 1" AND in the "Level 2" lists. Therefore, the consensus was that volunteers would not be gaining anything by tiering the volunteer awards.

New Business

- Meeting Dates for 2015
As of July 2014, we changed the July (starting in 2015) meeting from Board to Membership. To completely even out the gap between meeting types, the October meeting will be changed from a membership meeting to a board meeting.

A motion was made, seconded and approved to adjourn the meeting at 9:15 p.m.

CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR FIRST JUNIOR BEGINNER'S CLASS!
