| | 8 | Section Two: Alpha Telcom, Inc |
| 4 | 9 | |
| | 10 | 17. Respondent ALPHA TELCOM, Inc was formed in 1986 by Paul Rubera and |
| | 11 | several associates for the purpose of selling, installing, and maintaining phones and business |
| | 12 | systems in the Grants Pass, Oregon area. Over the next decade Alpha Telcom branched into pay |
| | 13 | phones, eventually owning and operating approximately one thousand eight hundred (1,800) |
| | 14 | phones for its own account in southern Oregon and northern California. |

| | 21 | payphones to individual members of the public and then "manage" (lease back) the same |
| | 22 | payphones on their behalf. As the concept developed, Alpha Telcom "sold" a (usually used, |
| | 23 | refurbished, or already placed in the field) payphone to its sales subsidiary, ATC, which then |
| | 24 | "sold" the same phone to a member of the public at a highly inflated price ($4,000-$5,000 per |
| | 25 | phone), at which point the investor would "lease" the same phone back to Alpha Telcom in |
| | 26 | return for a monthly lease payment of a minimum of $58.34, a sum that amounts to a 14% annual |

1 return. As part of the lease (Alpha Telcom called it a "service agreement") Alpha Telcom 2 obligated itself to repurchase the payphone from the investor at the original purchase price at the 3 conclusion of the (usually three year) contract, or a slightly lesser amount prior to that point (87.5% during months one through six of the service agreement, 92.5% during months seven to 4 5 twelve of the service agreement, 95% during months thirteen through twenty four of the service 6 agreement, and 97.5% during months twenty five through thirty six of the service agreement).

8 20. From 1997 through 2001 ALPHA TELCOM raised more than one hundred thirty 9 five million dollars ($135,000,000,00) from over seven thousand (7,000) investors nationwide by 10 peddling this investment program (this number includes at least seventy seven (77) payphones 11 sold to forty eight (48) Oregonians). At one time, Alpha Telcom claimed to "manage" eighteen 12 thousand two hundred (18,200) pay telephones "owned" by investors.

21. TUMMINO was under contract by ALPHA TELCOM from 1997 through 1998 as Director of Sales. Tummino drafted many of the original sales documents, recruited many of the original sales agents, and crafted many of the elements of what became known as the Alpha Telcom program. He retired in mid 1998, and as part of his severance package negotiated an 18 arrangement whereby he would receive compensation in the form of one percent (1%) of future 19 gross sales in any month in which sales exceeded two million dollars ($2,000,000.00), with a 20 minimum payment of twenty thousand dollars ($20,000.00) per month.

Section Three: ATC

24 22. Prior to departing ALPHA TELCOM, TUMMINO participated in the creation of a 25 sales subsidiary known as ATC, Inc. ATC, Inc was a wholly owned subsidiary of Alpha Telcom incorporated on October 25, 1998. ATC took over full responsibility for the process of selling 26

Alpha Telcom payphone programs to members of the public, including the development and management of a nationwide sales force, the creation and distribution of sales materials, and customer service related chores such as administration of the voluminous paperwork that accompanied thousands of sales.

6 23. While ATC purported to change ownership several times, as a matter of practical 7 economic reality it was always controlled and operated by Paul Rubera and ALPHA TELCOM. 8 ATC was a legal subsidiary of Alpha Telcom from its founding in October, 1998 until July, 9 2000, when it was "spun off" as an independent entity owned by Paul Rubera. In September 10 2000, Rubera "sold" ATC (it also operated using the moniker "American Telecommunications 11 Company") for $100 to his then administrative assistant, Respondent BLAIR FINGERSON, 12 who then sold it back to him for $100 in early April, 2001. In late April, 2001, Rubera sold ATC 13 to another Alpha Telcom employee, Robert A McDonald, in exchange for a $20,000 note to be 14 paid at the rate of $113.00 per month (in point of fact, no payments were ever made by 15 McDonald or demanded by Rubera). In August, 2001 Rubera "repurchased" ATC from 16 McDonald.

24. ALPHA TELCOM and ATC operated as two divisions of a single company. ATC conducted no business with any entity other than Alpha Telcom. ATC never actually took physical possession of a payphone it sold to a member of the public: the phone stayed in Alpha Telcom's control throughout. Funds that ATC received from members of the public for payphone sales were available and often transferred directly to Alpha Telcom at Paul Rubera's direction. At the time of its bankruptcy filing Alpha Telcom had "borrowed" over nine million dollars ($9,000,000.00+) from ATC, accumulated in monthly "loans" that were directly proportionate to Alpha Telcom's funding needs at any given point in time.

24

Section Four: Alpha Telcom Payphone Program

25. The Alpha Telcom Payphone program consisted of the purchase of a $5,000 pay telephone by an investor (pre-March 1, 1999 sales were at $4,000 per unit) concurrent with that same investor's entry into a "service agreement" (leaseback) whereby Alpha Telcom was to "manage" the phone on the investor's behalf in exchange for a monthly payment. The two agreements were presented and promoted simultaneously as part of a single package.

26. While investors were told they had the choice of operating their own payphone, one 9 hundred percent of Oregon investors picked Alpha Telcom to manage their phones for them. 10 Although investors were theoretically given four "service options", as a matter of economic 11 12 reality only one choice was feasible. Most investors did not have the experience or knowledge necessary to operate and maintain a payphone themselves, so they selected the service option 13 that required Alpha to perform all necessary duties ("Level Four"). Alpha Telcom selected the 14 15 location of the phone, installed the phone, obtained all certifications from regulatory bodies, 16 maintained and cleaned the phone, paid all monthly telephone and utility bills, and collected coin 17 revenue. The investor never performed a single task.

27. Service option levels one, two, and three required the investor to forward varying fees 20 to Alpha Telcom each month for specific services. Under "level one" an investor would pay 21 Alpha Telcom forty dollars ($40.00) each month in exchange for which Alpha Telcom collected 22 all coin revenues from a phone and forwarded it to the investor. Under "level two" an investor 23 would pay Alpha Telcom fifty dollars ($50.00) each month in exchange for which Alpha Telcom 24 collected all coin revenues from a phone, forwarded the funds to the investor, and maintained the 25 payphone in a neat and clean condition. Under "level three" an investor would pay Alpha 26 Telcom eighty dollars ($80.00) each month in exchange for which Alpha Telcom collected all coin revenue from a phone, forwarded the funds to the investor, maintained the payphone in a 1 2 neat and clean condition, provided for the repair of the equipment, obtained and renewed all public utility permits, and made all capital improvements as necessary. Under these three 3 4 options, Alpha would forward 100% of actual pay revenues to the investor. Since investors in the 5 Alpha Telcom payphone program wanted to garner monthly income from the company at a precise rate, and not forward additional funds to the company each month in return for an 6 7 uncertain return, none of the Oregon investors (and only a handful of the nationwide investor 8 base) chose any of these three options.

10 28. Each month "Level Four" investors were to receive thirty percent of the net revenue 11 (defined by the company as gross coin revenues minus the actual cost for local and long distance 12 service incurred and minus so called "dial around" revenue emanating from toll free calls) from 13 their phone, while Alpha Telcom was to receive seventy percent of a phone's revenues as its 14 management fee. However, if revenues from a payphone did not generate a so called "base 15 amount" of $58.34 in any given month (the amount was calculated by dividing a fourteen percent 16 annual return on a $5,000 investment into twelve monthly increments), Alpha agreed to waive a 17 portion of its seventy percent fee and pay that monthly base amount payment in full. If Alpha 18 waived its entire fee and the base amount still was not met, Alpha made up the difference 19 anyway. Indeed, Alpha created a computer program that automatically paid each investor the 20 base amount each month, regardless of whether the investor's particular phone generated enough revenue to pay that amount. 21

23 29. The "Level Four" service option allowed investors to sell the phones back to Alpha's sales subsidiary, ATC, at the original purchase price. This was commonly referred to as the "buyback" provision, and was proffered to give investors in the payphone program the illusion of liquidity similar to that of a certificate of deposit or other time instrument. (Beginning sometime

PAGE 9- ALPHA TELCOM, ET ALIA CEASE AND DESIST ORDER NO. A-03-0012

1 after May 2000, investors were also given the option of purchasing buyback "insurance" from 2 companies alternately referred to as belonging to "Lloyd's of London" or rated AA+ by an 3 insurance rating service. The insurance would purportedly cover the investor's purchase price if 4 for any reason the company became unable to repurchase the phones. In point of fact, the 5 insurance policy, underwritten by an agency that was partially owned by Alpha Telcom's Paul 6 Rubera and improperly procured, never resulted in the payment of any claims to investors.) 7 8 Section Five: The Alpha Telcom Sales Process 9 10 30. As noted above, Respondent TUMMINO was initially in charge of ALPHA 11 TELCOM's marketing and sales efforts. This individual retained and managed a small sales 12 force of insurance agents to solicit investors in the program. He created the marketing materials 13 employed by sales agents, the sales agreement that Alpha Telcom investors would execute when 14 "purchasing" their phone, and the Alpha Telcom service agreement that would concurrently 15 authorize Alpha Telcom to "manage" the investor's phone on their behalf. Tummino retired at the end of 1998. 16 17 18 31. Commencing in January, 1999 Alpha Telcom contracted out the management and 19 continued development of its sales force to two independent insurance agents, Ross Rambach 20 and Mark Kennison. Rambach and Kennison operated under the business names "Strategic 21 Partnership Alliance" and/or "Strategic Partnership Marketing ." Strategic Partnership Alliance 22 significantly modified many of the sales materials that were initially prepared by Tummino. 23 (This was to be the first of many rounds of changes to either sales materials or details of the 24 program. As such, while there are many common elements, there is not one single uniform Alpha 25 Telcom program. For example, "service agreements" varied in length from three to ten years.) 26 Rambach and Kennison placed heavy emphasis on expanding the sales force. At its height,

Division of Finance and Corporate Securities Labor and Industries Building 350 Winter Street NE, Suite 410 Salem, OR 97301-388 Telephone: (503) 378-4387 Strategic Partnership Alliance managed one thousand seven hundred (1,700) Alpha Telcom sales agents nationwide, of whom almost all were independent insurance agents.

32. Sales agents were compensated exclusively through commissions, receiving a percentage (between 10-14%) of each sale as their remuneration. Sales agents received a manual that purported to govern all aspects of their roles as sales agents, including sales scripts and charts they were to employ. The agents received no formal classroom training or continuing education.

10 33. The Alpha Telcom sales agent would typically begin the sales process by contacting 11 their insurance clients that were in or near retirement (the type of client that would likely have a 12 substantial percentage of their assets in certificates of deposit or other cash equivalents) and ask 13 them if they would like to get a higher return than banks offered while maintaining the safety of 14 their money. Once clients answered in the affirmative, the agent asked to meet with the 15 prospective investor in their home to discuss the program, sometimes not even mentioning at this 16 point that the program involved the sale and subsequent leaseback of payphones.

18 34. Once at the face to face meeting, sales agents informed prospective investors that 19 Alpha Telcom offered an attractive program involving pay telephones. Using a series of charts 20 provided by Alpha Telcom, the agents described the essentials of the program: that the investor 21 was to purchase a pay telephone for $5,000 per unit; that the investor will receive a monthly 22 payment of at least $58.34, which works out to an annual return on their investment of 14%; that 23 the program is low risk, safe, and conservative; that at the conclusion of the contract term Alpha 24 Telcom will repurchase the payphone at the original purchase price, and will even repurchase it 25 before the conclusion of the contract at the original purchase price minus certain fees; that Alpha 26 Telcom is a very safe and profitable company; that (post January 1, 2000) there is a special two million dollar ($2,000,000) "sinking fund" to ensure that moneys will be available for "buy backs"; that phone purchases qualify the investor for special tax credits because the payphones are equipped for handicapped access, etc. A single Alpha Telcom sales chart (chart six) summarizes all essential program elements as follows: "$5,000 per pay phone cost, typically 14% or higher annual return, strong monthly income, excellent buy back option, phones qualify for tax credits under The Americans With Disabilities Act of 1990, equipment depreciation, usually 5 or 7 years straight line, no stock market risk."

9 35. At the conclusion of the sales agent's presentation, written materials including, but not always limited to, a brochure describing the Alpha Telcom program, a Telephone Equipment 10 11 Purchase Agreement, and a Telephone Service Agreement were provided to prospective 12 investors. Several different versions of the materials were employed at various times, yet all are filled with "happy talk." The brochure represents among other things, that the payphone industry 13 14 is "highly profitable", that payphone investments are "virtually recession proof" and that payphone investments "offer steady, immediate cash flow." The brochure also contains a 15 purported quote from the Cincinnati Post noting that "[a]n average of 500 to 800 calls are made 16 on a payphone per month, according to AT & T" and a purported quote from USA Today 17 18 asserting that "there are millions to be made from owning payphones." In a "Performance 19 Comparison" with bank certificates of deposit, the brochure claims that with regard to the 20 investment's "safety", it is "asset backed." Finally, the brochure asserts that "opportunity doesn't always knock... sometimes it rings!" 21

36. At or about the time of the events in question, the entire pay telephone industry was facing monumental challenges that were rapidly reducing revenues. New technology was largely to blame for the industry's demise: heavy usage of cellular telephone technology, facsimiles, emails, and "calling cards" were causing income to drop as much as fifty percent per annum. 1 None of the Respondents ever disclosed any of this information to potential investors. Ouite the 2 contrary: while industry experts openly discussed the seemingly insurmountable problem the 3 payphone industry was facing, Respondents presented a glowing picture of the industry in oral 4 and written comments. As instructed, sales agents focused on the fourteen percent return and the 5 purported "safety" of the program as its primary selling points. The sales pitch focused 6 exclusively on the supposed benefits of the investment, and made no mention of lurking 7 difficulties. In short, the agents would talk about anything and everything but the risks of this 8 program and the true state of the payphone industry.

37. Never considering suitability or asset allocation issues, a significant number of Alpha Telcom agents attempted to sell prospective investors as many phones as possible. Some investors placed their entire life savings into this program.

program to fourteen (14) investors in the State of Oregon for a total investment of at least fifty six thousand dollars ($56,000). (TUMMINO, as Director of Sales, participated indirectly in thousands of sales nationwide. Furthermore, TUMMINO received a percentage of each sale made nationwide after his retirement.)

39. Respondent CLAPP directly participated in the sale of the Alpha Telcom program to two (2) investors in or from the State of Oregon that purchased a total of two (2) phones for a total investment of ten thousand dollars ($10,000).

40. Respondent PAUL FARVER directly participated in the sale of the Alpha Telcom program to five (5) investors in or from the State of Oregon that purchased eight (8) phones for a 3 41. Respondent MELINDA FARVER directly participated in the sale of the Alpha 4 Telcom program to nineteen (19) investors or from the State of Oregon that purchased thirty 5 eight (38) phones for a total investment of one hundred sixty nine thousand dollars ($169,000). 6 7 42. Respondent JANNA RAMELLI directly participated in the sale of the Alpha 8 Telcom program to at least four (4) investors in or from the State of Oregon for a total of eight 9 (8) sales for a total investment of thirty two thousand dollars ($32,000). 10 11 43. Respondent DAVID RAMELLI directly participated in the sale of the Alpha Telcom 12 program to four (4) investors in or from the State of Oregon for a total of seven (7) sales for a 13 total investment of thirty thousand dollars ($30,000). 14 15 Section Seven: Payphone Operations 16 17 44. Once the investor's two signed contracts (purchase and service) and check were 18 received by ATC it transmitted a Purchase Order to Alpha Telcom which then, within ninety 19 days, assigned a specific payphone to the investor (the investor had no say in where their phone 20 would be located). At that point, the investor would begin receiving monthly payments, usually 21 via an electronic funds transfer (EFT) directly to their bank account. 22 23 45. Alpha Telcom's payphone sales grew quickly (at one point in time it was averaging 24 over one thousand two hundred (1,200) sales per month). In fact, the company's sales pace was so accelerated that it ranked #189 on the 2000 Inc 500 list, proof that it was one of the fastest nance and Corporate Securities ustries Building eet NE, Suite 410 101-3881 1 growing private companies in the United States.

46. To quench its demand for locations on which payphones could be placed into the stream of commerce (sites), Alpha Telcom purchased entire routes (a route is a series of already placed payphones) and in some instances entire regional phone companies yet still found itself in dire need of sites on which to place so many payphones.

47. Alpha Telcom contracted with an affiliate of Strategic Partnership Alliance, ATMN/EMI, to acquire phone sites for Alpha Telcom's use. Eventually, Alpha Telcom discovered that many of the sites ATMN/EMI found were in locations not suitable for pay telephones, such as burned out buildings. In some instances, the purported location did not even exist. Alpha Telcom terminated its relationship with ATMN/EMI in December, 2000 with the problem of finding an ample supply of payphone sites unresolved.

48. As time passed, Alpha Telcom's sales agents were encouraging their existing Alpha Telcom clients to exercise the "buyback" option for one of two reasons: first, the agent would "repurchase" the Alpha Telcom program (allowing the agent to receive an additional commission) or, second and more likely, invest proceeds in another type of commission producing investment. While Alpha Telcom sales agents were sharing these types of strategies with each other, the media carried news of the demise of other similarly structured programs (ETS Payphones, Phoenix Telecom, etc). As such, what began as a trickle of buyback requests turned into an avalanche, with between 300-500 investors demanding their funds each month. The company wasn't selling enough phone programs (since income from operations [coin revenue] was insufficient to even meet fixed costs, new phone program sales were the only possible source of funds to satisfy "buybacks") to repurchase phones as promised.

1 49. Investors in the Alpha Telcom payphone program were not paid in accordance with 2 the revenue generated from each particular payphone. To meet the payment obligations Alpha 3 Telcom had created for itself by assuring investors that full "base amount" payments would be 4 made each month, it "borrowed" over nine million dollars ($9,000,000+) from ATC. ATC's only 5 source of revenue was money from new investors. Contrary to representations of Alpha Telcom 6 and its agents as to the profitability and safety of the payphone investment program, since at least 7 January, 2000 Alpha Telcom's revenues from payphones were substantially exceeded by the 8 monthly payments it made to investors. In summary, Alpha Telcom was operating a Ponzi like 9 scheme whereby existing investor's monthly "returns" were being paid from monies received 10 from new investors, rather than from payphone revenues.

12 50. Alpha Telcom did not honor buy back requests from March, 2001 on because they 13 were financially unable to do so. Earlier in the payphone program's history, when buybacks were 14 rare, they were accomplished within thirty days. As buyback requests rose with the passage of 15 time, new rules, such as a ninety day "notice" requirement, were imposed in an effort to forestall 16 the flood of requests, all to no avail. As for monthly "base amount" payments, they stopped 17 entirely in May, 2001.

51. For the twelve months ending December 31, 2001 Alpha Telcom lost $583,793.24 from its payphone operations. Alpha Telcom lost money in seven of the twelve months of 2001, and never showed a profit from its payphone operations large enough to enable it to make the $11,056,197.48 in payments that it made to payphone owners from coin revenues.

52. For the five months from January through May, 2002, Alpha Telcom lost
$1,185,197.59 from its operations of payphones. Alpha lost money in each of these five months of 2001, and thus was unable to make the $5,722,868.37 in payments that it made to payphone owners from coin revenues. Alpha Telcom paid a total of $16,779,065.85 to payphone owners for these months, notwithstanding the fact that the company experienced a loss of $1,513,930.70 from operating payphones during this same period.

53. From July 1, 1998 through June 30, 2001, Alpha's payphone program failed to generate revenue sufficient to cover the cost of phone operations. Notwithstanding this fact, Alpha Telcom paid investors approximately $17, 900,000 in returns.

In August, 2001 the United States Securities and Exchange Commission brought an 13 action alleging violations of federal securities laws by, among others, Alpha Telcom, Paul 14 Rubera, Ross Rambach, and Mark Kennison in the United States District Court for the District 15 of Oregon (Case No CV01-1283PA). Judge Owen Panner issued a Temporary Restraining Order 16 halting further sales shortly after the complaint was filed, and issued a final Judgment and 17 Permanent Restraining Order against the company in February, 2002. The Court found that 18 Alpha Telcom had engaged in the unregistered sales of securities in violation of federal law. 19
