Residential energy is exempt from Iowa state sales tax. It remains subject to any applicable local option sales tax.

Residential energy includes metered electricity, metered natural gas, propane, heating fuel, and kerosene.

Energy billed to a residence is taxable when used for non-residential purposes, such as a business conducted in the residence. Separate meters for residential and non-residential use are ideal; however, a separate meter for non-residential use is not practical in some cases.

If it is impractical to separately meter and bill the energy, complete the Energy Used for Taxable Purposes form (31-116) and give it to your energy supplier. Your supplier will require an updated form at least every three years and will need documentation showing how the energy is used.
